Echoes of the Northern Press.

Our affairs continue to interest the journals of the North. They give their opinions pretty freely of our condition, our policy, our candidates for office, and the prospects we have of recovering honest government and prosperity once more. Of course they speak according to political bias and sectional feeling, more or less. Some think we are criminals, while others consider us ill used. Some write about us like sensible men, others like madmen, fools, fanatics and knaves. Just now we find several respectable newspapers considering what is best for us to do in the present emergency; how we are best to secure the great object of a decent, economical and honest government. The New York Times advises "the tax-payers, if they are wise, to do their best to aid this new movement for good government in the State (the Independent Republican) and not to embarrass it by making any nomination of their own for Governor." The Louisville Courier-Journal feels assured that "if a fair election should be obtained, the defeat of Chamberlain would be certain." The New York Tribune says:

"Reform is the sole idea of the bolt from Chamberlain's nomination in South Carolina, as set forth in the resolutions of the Independent Republican Convention. They proclaim themselves not hostile to republican principles; they only oppose leaders whom they cannot trust. Their proceedings seem to have been marked by moderation, and they have strong hopes of turning the scale in the government of the State."

The New York Sun has this to say: "The Independent Republican movement in South Carolina looks formidable, as there is manifested a strong disposition among the Conservative voters in many parts of the State to support it. It is quite probable that the ticket will be supported by the mass of the white voters, simply because they do not think that Green and Delany are thieves, while they believe that Chamberlain and all his crew are horribly corrupt."

We will make only one other quotation, and that for the benefit of our friends who have expressed a desire to run a straight out Conservative ticket. By the way, all these passages which we quote were written before the action of the Conservative Convention was taken, and appear in Thursday's issue. Averse as the New York World is to the compromise of any principle, it inclines to the opinion that the policy we have taken was the very best possible for us. "It looks," it says, "as if the Conservatives might be forced to the conclusion, that the only way to get the State out of its present miserable plight, is to accept the situation as presented by the bolters. Judge Greene, if not a Conservative, is still a man of excellent reputation for honesty, which Chamberlain is not; and, furthermore, he is a native Carolinian, and has ability. A Conservative Governor is what South Carolina needs, but Judge Green would be an immense improvement on Scott and Moses."

Secoundrelly.

Senator Morton recently opened the political campaign in the State of Indiana with a speech, the burden of which was to terrify the voters with a fearful image of the "outrages" going on in the South against "the Government" and the "wards of the nation." Morton is known to be unscrupulous and unprincipled. But the attempt has been made to impose him as high authority upon the simple and credulous fools of "the party" down here. Here is something which he composed and sent out as soon as he had delivered the speech to which we refer. It daggered the man completely as a villain of the first water:

ROOMS REP. STATE CENTRAL COM. INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 3, 1874.

Editor of Union, Rensselaer, Ind.
DEAR SIR: I desire to call your attention to the horrible scenes of violence and bloodshed transpiring throughout the South, and suggest that you give them as great prominence as possible in your paper from this time until after the election.

THEOS. J. BRADY, Chairman.

If we are to place any reliance in the New York Tribune's despatches, Kellogg will soon have more to apprehend from his friends than from the White Leaguers. In his own party there are many indications that the colored people particularly are becoming dissatisfied with him and his administration. Several colored Republican clubs in New Orleans are organizing with a view to co-operation with the Democrats against misgovernment by political adventurers, and the movement is slowly spreading in the country.

In a Nut-Shell.

The Nation acknowledges the receipt from a friend of Mr. Chamberlain's of a reply to many of the charges made against him. The Nation shows that the grumblings of the opposition against him is not correctly stated. It proceeds to find, differently, as "guilty knowledge of, and connivance at thefts from the public treasury," and to run a comparison between his case and that of A. Oskey Hall. Neither would make a good candidate for reform Governor. "In South Carolina," it concludes, "the principal duty of a reform magistrate now would be to keep the hands of thieves (who are always on the look-out and have a great many excellent opportunities) out of the public treasury; in this work Mr. Chamberlain must himself admit that he lamentably failed while in office. Finally, we may add, that the mere fact that a man has not been or even cannot be convicted of felony, is not of itself sufficient reason for electing him to office."

THE BONDS.—As a matter of justice, we copy the following letters of Secretary Cardozo and Mr. Solomon, in reply to the charges of Senator Dunn:

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 8, 1874.
To Hon. S. W. Melton—DEAR SIR: In answer to your communication of this date, requesting me to state whether Mr. Thomas O. Dunn, of Horry, had not made statements to me looking to additional legislation at the next session of the Legislature for the purpose of funding what is known as the conversion bonds, I have to say that, after Senator Dunn's return from New York, he had conversations with me in the rooms of the South Carolina Bank and Trust Company, in which he said that the conversion bonds ought to be included in the funding act, and that money could be made out of it. He did not propose any specific scheme. I do not recall the particulars of the conversation, but the purport of it was that he was in favor of taking up these bonds, and that the credit of the State would not be restored until this was done. Very truly yours,
HARDY SOLOMON.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 8, 1874.
Hon. Samuel W. Melton, Attorney-General, S. C.—SIR: In reply to yours of this date, requesting a written statement of the conversation we held on the letters and report of Senator T. O. Dunn, I have the honor to state, that in the month of June last, Mr. Dunn made a report to me of what he considered irregularities in the issue of several classes of the bonds authorized to be funded by the General Assembly last winter. I learnt from you, and afterwards from himself, that he had written you, requesting you to enjoin me and restrain the execution of the law. The irregularities alleged are these: That the bonds referred to were authorized to be sold within twenty-four months after the passage of the Act, and that he discovered that the parties to whom the bonds were hypothecated sold them after the expiration of the twenty-four months, notwithstanding the hypothecation took place before that period, and the State had received the money authorized to be raised thereon. This struck me as a very trifling reason for so grave a step, and that at best such an objection would be regarded as merely technical; and knowing Senator Dunn quite well, from a close and careful observation of his character for the last two years in the Senate, and especially his conduct in advocating the payment of the Blue Ridge scrip last winter, when he tried to revive the subject, even after the Legislature had emphatically refused to pay it, I immediately concluded that the alleged reason was a mere pretext, and that Senator Dunn had some ulterior object in view. I, therefore, set myself to work to find it out. In conversing with Senator Dunn, one day, in my office, I asked him what his real object in trying to prevent the execution of the Funding Act, which I thought so beneficial to the State. He said he wished the execution of the Act delayed, until, by supplemental legislation next winter, he could get the "conversion bonds" and the "Blue Ridge scrip" included in the settlement.

In further conversation with Senator Dunn, I inferred that this method was pursued to compel me to withdraw my opposition to these two swindles. This conversation I afterwards communicated to you, and authorized you to make whatever use of it you thought proper. Very respectfully, &c.,
F. L. CARDOZO, Treasurer S. C.

A married woman in Mohawk, N. Y., was a prospective mother-in-law and she wanted to find out exactly what kind of a chap he was who was courting her daughter. So she dressed herself in male attire and went to a ball where she was certain to meet him. During the evening, disguised as a fashionable young fop, she managed to get into a quarrel with the young man himself. Lacking masculine muscle she was worsted in a ball-room scrimmage. Her new place was smashed down over her head, her nose stopped a well meant blow, and her moustache was accidentally pulled off. Then the young man suddenly recognized his prostrate mother-in-law, and found too late that he had been fighting with the wrong man. The woman was sent home in a carriage, and the young man has not been round courting her daughter since.

Simon Engman, a German, committed suicide at New Orleans, yesterday.

THOSE FICTITIOUS OUTRAGES.—In the United States Court, on the 7th, the grand jury were discharged for the term by Judge Bryan. The only matters brought before them during the term were a few trifling cases for violation of the revenue laws. In dismissing the jury, Judge Bryan referred feelingly to the improved condition of public affairs in the State as indicated by the absence of all criminal proceedings during many months past, and commended the prompt and intelligent dispatch of the public business by the grand jury. The new law requiring all jurors to be able to read and write has worked admirably. The jury were composed of about an equal number of white and colored men.

IT IS NOT TRUE.—There seems to be an opinion prevalent with some persons that there will be a further postponement of the Library Concert. There is no ground for this idea. We speak ex cathedra when we say that Governor Bramlette informs us, and through us the public, that the drawing will take place on the 30th of November as surely as that day will arrive in the calendar. Those who wish to partake of the benefits of the gifts, or to add their mite to the success of the great Library, should not delay an hour to become shareholders in the grandest enterprise ever offered to the public in this or any other country.

The Elmira Advertiser says: Henry B. Fitch, of this city, contemplates a monument to the memory of the Confederate dead, who died in prison here during the war, to be placed at Woodland Cemetery, in this city. It is to be of artificial stone, twenty feet in height, a single shaft, supported by a plinth base and an obelisk base, not possessing much, if any, ornamentation, but being of graceful proportions and noticeable on many accounts. On one face are the inscriptions, "Requiescat in Pace," "1874," "Erected by a Union officer in memory of the Confederate dead."

DAT SENATOR AM HEFTY.—The street car conductors in Washington are supplied with little steel punches, which they wear slung to a belt under their coats, and use to punch tickets with. An old Senator, unaware of this improvement, got on a car in his usual happy condition, and when the conductor approached, drawing out his punch, the old gentleman roared out, "Don't shoot, you scoundrel; don't shoot; I am a Senator," saying which he tumbled back, falling into the lap of a fat colored woman, who rode four squares before she got breath enough to exclaim: "Fore do Lord, but dat Senator am hefty."

The new colors to be worn this year are the "Volcano," "Cardinal" and the "Flower of Sulphur." "Cardinal" is red or scarlet, after the fashion of a Cardinal's hat; "Volcano" is designated to represent as to color the eruption of a burning mountain, and for "Flower of Sulphur," it isn't like anything else in the world but flower of sulphur, or a very pale canary. It isn't a good thing to wear. "Flower of Sulphur," in the daylight, but the gas light is a marvelous improver of its tints.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, CHARLESTON, October 9.—In Bankruptcy.—Ex parte D. C. Wilson, in re M. M. K. ngman. Petition for money due. The assignee, James G. Thompson, was ordered to pay to the agent of R. Saxton, United States Army, out of the proceeds of the sale of the house and lot described in the petition, the sum of $4,270 25. Ex parte James S. McSwain, John Hardin and H. E. McFaden, of York County. Petition for final discharge. Referred for report to Registrar W. J. Clawson.

A Gilbertown (Iowa) man, while digging a well, recently, came to a broad, flat stone, twenty or so feet below the surface, under which was found a sarcophagus containing the skull, vertebrae and charred ribs of a man, and an iron circlet or crown, a bronze dagger and battle-axe, several finger rings, a peculiar instrument of music, and a panel of wood, much worm-eaten, on which was partially engraved and partially stained a nude figure bound to a tree.

It is an interesting if not edifying fact that there are 30,000 individuals in New York city who live on other people's earnings—who are, in fact, professional thieves. These, with the beggars, make a rather large dependent community for any city. These facts are said to come from the police themselves, which does not speak well for the enforcement of the Act against professional thieves.

The announcement of the intention of the Austrian Government to send out an exploring expedition next year to the Arctic regions has stirred up the enterprise and patriotism of the New York Herald to the point that it offers to pay one-fourth of the expense of an American expedition, to be under the direction of our most distinguished Arctic explorer, D. Hayes.

"What's your business?" said the magistrate of a police court, the other morning, to a prisoner: "I'm an observationist, your worship." "An observationist! What is that?" "One who looks around in the day time to see what he can steal at night, if it pleases your worship."

A timid man wants to know "how to tell a mad dog." We don't know what he wants to tell him, but the safest way would be to communicate with the dog in writing. Send the letter from a gun in the shape of wadding, followed by small shot, to see if he gets it.

INVISIBLE POISONS.—The Medicos and the Borgias fortified their systems with powerful antidotes against the subtle poisons with which they used to destroy their enemies, and which they feared might one day be employed against themselves. There are invisible poisons, almost as deadly, against which few of us think of taking any precaution. These poisons are in the air. When the atmosphere is surcharged with them, as it sometimes is at this season, epidemic fevers ensue. The summer which has just closed has been a most remarkable one. The exhalations from the soil have been, and are, dense and copious almost beyond example. These exhalations exercise a pernicious influence on the vital powers, and predispose the system to disease. Everywhere people are complaining of unusual debility, lassitude and depression. These symptoms are generally forerunners of an epidemic. Combat them early—before they lapse into something worse—with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the most effective antidote to malarial taint the vegetable kingdom has ever yielded. Its operation is three-fold—invigorating, depurative and anti-bilious. Free from any ingredient that is in the slightest degree deleterious to health, and containing the juices and extracts of the rarest medicinal herbs, it is immeasurably superior, as a defensive preparation, to any other tonic, herbal or mineral, at present used in medical practice. A course of Hostetter's Bitters, is humanely speaking, a perfect safeguard against intermittent and remittent fevers.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.—Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic, and Schenck's Mandrake Pills, are the only medicines that will cure Pulmonary Consumption. Frequently medicines that will stop a cough will occasion the death of the patient; they lock up the liver, stop the circulation of the blood, hemorrhage follows, and, in fact, they clog the action of the very organs that caused the cough.

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia are the causes of two thirds of the cases of Consumption. Many persons complain of a dull pain in the side, constipation, coated tongue, pain in the shoulder blade, feelings of drowsiness and restlessness, the food lying heavily on the stomach, accompanied with acidity and belching up of wind. These symptoms usually originate from a disordered condition of the stomach or a torpid liver.

Persons so affected, if they take one or two heavy colds, and if the cough in these cases be suddenly checked, will find the stomach and liver clogged, remaining torpid and inactive, and almost before they are aware, the lungs are a mass of sores and ulcerated, the result of which is death.

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup is an expectorant, which does not contain opium or anything calculated to check a cough suddenly.

Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic dissolves the food, mixes with the gastric juices of the stomach, aids digestion and creates a ravenous appetite.

When the bowels are costive, skin sallow or the symptoms otherwise of a bilious tendency, Schenck's Mandrake Pills are required.

These medicines are prepared only by J. H. SCHENCK & SON, N. E. corner Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia, and are for sale by all druggists and dealers.
